Improvement Body Calls Public Meeting Friday to Discuss Action

stated W. H. Comstock, general manager of this line, in a recent letter to the city council. "Various proposed plans have been investigated in the hope of reaching a solution which would prove satisfactory to your body and to the citizens of Glendale without working a serious detriment to our service.
"In order to meet your wishes fully, we have now reached a tentative understanding with the Glendale & Montrose Railroad company under which that company will handle through the medium of electric power freight business on Glendale avenue.
"Although this change will involve expenditure of a considerable sum by both our company and the Glendale & Montrose company, we are hopeful that by such an arrangement we will be enabled to overcome the objections and meet the wishes of the city administration and the people of your community.
Seeks Assurance
"However, the operating agreement has been made upon the assumption that the city of Glendale will be able to assure the Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad company of the continued use of property now occupied by certain industries served in the area referred to in our discussion as Block No. 4 and also the block immediately north in which our freight station is located and that the city may further open to industrial use, as occasion requires, other property in that vicinity which may be served by the Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad company's tracks.
"Our proposal is not prompted entirely by selfish motives as we believe that the continued growth and increasing importance of the city of Glendale is dependent not alone upon its ever-increasing popularity as a residential city but that the future of the city must be very vitally affected by the policy which the city authorities and its people may assume toward industrial development.
"It is the desire of the Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad company to co-operate with the city of Glendale and to actively participate in the effort to secure for your city the industrial and business development so essential to its future welfare and stability.
"The arrangement has also been entered with the full understanding that the Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroad company will not forfeit any of the franchise rights which it now enjoys in the city of Glendale.
"It is our belief that the city of Glendale desires to move half way in this matter. Before consummating a formal contract with the Glendale & Montrose Railroad company it is essential that we know the attitude of the city authorities."

Fighting for the Road
Glendale's Accessibility
More Building and Vacation Good Deeds in Order Now
By Gil A. Cowan

"FIGHTING for the road!"
That is the way E. P.
Hayward described his trip between San Jose and San Francisco in the recent realtors' caravan.

Traffic on California highways has reached the peak point and the overload is resulting in scores of casualties daily.
"Fighting for the road" seems almost impossible when, eight years ago, one had miles of stretches where nary a machine was met.

Now in the maddening age of motoritis not only good judgment is required, but a dogged determination is necessary to get anywhere. And when it comes to hill climbing or sliding down the sides of the mountain, it takes not only nerve, but as sturdy a constitution as a car.

Thankfully, Glendale has few dangerous grades and practically anyone can drive with comparative safety.
But when you go to Los Angeles—well, watch that the brakes are in good working order.

Glendale's accessibility to Los Angeles, as compared with Hollywood, the beaches, Pasadena or other points, gives this community great advantage for the commuter.

When the Second street tunnel is completed in Los Angeles (yes, when it is) and the Pacific Electric has facilitated its traffic with a subway into the Hill street station, Glendale will find more fortune in its strategic location at the gateway to the San Fernando valley.

However, campaigns should be started now to open additional laterals, to back the move for the opening of Los Feliz road along the river, which is called Riverdale drive under the Los Angeles city planning commission program, and otherwise obtain more entryways to the metropolis.

HUTCHINSON OUT OF GOLF MEET AT SCOTLAND

American Fails to Make the Grade in Elimination Matches for Title

LONDON, June 8.—Jock Hutchinson of Chicago no longer is a contestant in the thousand guineas golf tournament at Glen Eagles, Scotland. The British open champion was eliminated in the first round today by A. G. Havers of West Lancashire, which defeats the only surviving American, one up.

The result came as a shock to the large gallery of spectators, many of whom had seen Hutchinson win the British title so impressively at St. Andrews last year.

Jock played smart golf against Havers, going out in 39 and coming back in 38 for a total score of 77. He was able to carry Havers to the home hole but the latter had one of his good days and would not be denied.

Arnaut Massey, former French title holder, defeated King 5 up and 3 to play, and a third saw J. H. Taylor down Jack Rons, 4 and 3.

Abe Mitchell, winner of the tournament last year, defeated F. C. Jewell in a hard match, 2 and 1, and his partner, George Duncan, also came through at the expense of McInnes, who did not yield until the twentieth green. Yet another favorite, Ted Ray, disposed of Hugh McNeil by the close margin of 1 up while George Gadd disposed of H. C. Jolly by 2 up.

Helps Giants Win

NEW YORK, June 8.—Inspired by the sight of the 1921 National League pennant, which was unfurled prior to commencement of hostilities, the world champion Giants yesterday slaughtered the Cubs 9 to 4. The Cubs used four pitchers.

Wins Golf Title

RYE, N. Y., June 8.—Miss Glenn Collette of Providence won the woman's eastern golf championship here when she completed her third and last round in 86, giving her a total of 246 for the 54 holes medal play.

American Winner

LONDON, June 8.—Mrs. Molla Mallory, the American singles champion, defeated Mrs. Edington, 6-4, 6-0 in the semi-final round of the North London tennis championship today. The American will meet Mrs. Beamish in the finals.

SPORTS CHATTER

By BILL UNMACK
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

Bill Johnston, former national singles champion has positively made up his mind to go to Forest Hills this summer and have another crack at regaining the title. He will leave San Francisco about the middle of July and participate in a number of preliminary tournaments.

At the present time Johnston is playing as good tennis as he ever played. That means everything necessary to say about Johnston's game. Twice within a week he defeated his old rival, "Big Bill" Tilden last month at Berkeley, and a week prior to that beat him in Los Angeles. In the Berkeley tournament he made a copping block of that master of the courts, young Vincent Richards. There is no room to doubt that Bill Johnston is as great today as he ever was, but—

And here crops out the question, "Can Johnston retain his present great form up to the time he has to play in the national title events?"

In other years when Johnston contested for the title he has never attained the peak of his form and condition until the time for the Nationals. Today it is exactly three full months before the Nationals are to be played at Philadelphia on September 8. The early season height of this condition and form is not natural for Johnston, nor for any other athlete. To keep at this condition and point for September 8 is a serious matter and one that will give Johnston and his friends considerable to think about.

Tagging All Bases

The New York Giants raised the National League pennant and then turned around and raised hot with the Cub pitching staff, laying violent hands upon Cheever, Osborne, Jones and Kaufman in the order of their appearance. Score, 9 to 4. Cheever is the same young man who beat the Giants twice in one series recently.

Guy Morton confined the Senatorial attack to three hits until the eighth inning, when something of a disagreeable nature happened to Guy. While they were getting him out of harm's way the Senators scored six runs in the eighth and ninth, tying the score, and won out in the eleventh against Mails. It was their second straight victory over the Indians, the Senators going into third place.

Behind the consistent pitching of Signor Luque, the Cincinnati Reds inaugurated their eastern Johnston right today is irresistible. To beat a man of the caliber of Bill Tilden is proof of how the little Californian is playing. It is doubtful if there is a tennis player in the world today who could beat Johnston right now. His tennis is almost flawless.

The tennis followers of the Pacific coast have a warm corner in their heart for Bill Tilden. They appreciate his worth as a champion and a sportsman. They know that in Tilden, Johnston meets one of the greatest players the world has ever known and they believe that not withstanding they like Tilden and his work, that Bill Johnston is going to trim the present champion this season. The entire Pacific coast will be pulling for Johnston to win. They want him to win and that is natural, but some of the older heads are starting to ask, "Can he do it?"

Johnston has had a hard season so far. He has played in innumerable tournaments, besides the strenuous session of the east versus west when he beat Tilden and Richards. Besides all this tournament play he has been called on dozens of times to give exhibitions, and, like Bill Tilden, he never refuses as he considers it helps the sport and advances his claims in every way. All this playing has brought Johnston right up to the top of his form and now with three months ahead of him his friends are somewhat worried as to whether he can keep up and deliver his best when the actual time for the championships comes round.

trip with a six to two victory over the Dodgers. The latter obliged with five errors.

The duly repentant Messrs. Ruth and Meusel played a prominent part in the 9 to 7 defeat of the White Sox by the Yankees. Neither contributed any home runs to the occasion, but each culled a double, a single and two passes from the various and sundry Sox moundsmen.

LEAGUE OF CITIES IS ORGANIZED IN FLORIDA

TAMPA, Fla.—Great benefit to all of the cities of Florida, it is believed, will result from the organization here of the League of Municipalities, which was accomplished at a banquet held at El Pasaje Hotel following an all-day open session at the city hall and a launch ride, during which the 100 delegates present viewed the new municipal terminal improvements. Nineteen cities entered the organization as charter members, but it is thought that all Florida cities will eventually be included in the organization. A constitution and by-laws were adopted.

The purpose of the league is mutual assistance among city officials in solving various municipal and civic questions which may arise from time to time. The idea of the organization originated with City Manager Hall of Tampa, who formerly was city manager of Jackson, Mich.

The truth most required is the truth least liked.

The World Over

By FRANKLIN B. MORSE

When two super-stars and a major star of the baseball firmament get to umpire bailing, all within a few days, it is but natural that fandom takes notice and makes the query: "What's the matter?"

First we had the spectacle of Babe Ruth, most conspicuous of all players, throwing dirt in Hildebrand's face, followed recently by Ty Cobb, supposedly an example of all that is best in a baseball player, resorting to the childish trick of stepping on the "unoffending" corn of the official, while Heilmann, also of the Detroit team, was another offender.

Certainly the outlook is a bad one for the discipline of the game if men such as these, by their example are going to kick over the traces and lead the way for men who, perhaps, have not so keen an idea of responsibility as the men in question.

The question naturally comes up, to just what extent are the arbiters culpable by their acts or demeanor in arousing the bad blood in the player. There are always two sides to most questions, and this is the point that will have to be determined by the powers that be in meting out the punishment of the offending players.

It is well known that there have been umpires who temperamentally have been unfit for the place and the result always has been disastrous for the morale of the players.

The Sport Crucible

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Sports Edition

NEW YORK, June 8.—John McGraw, who has seen ball clubs, and particularly shortstops, come and go since the days of the old Baltimore Orioles and Bill Dahlen today named the Cincinnati Reds as the team that has shone the most during his recent western trip and Jimmy Caveney as the nearest approach to Honus Wagner he had ever seen.

"What is the best in the west?" he repeated. "Well, the Cincinnati Reds, just as they were going when we met them. They were playing great ball, particularly Caveney and Pihelli, and they got fine pitching from Rixey, Donahue and Luque. Of course I look to the Pirates to give us our hardest fight. They have the speed and the pitchers and this lad Traynor in the infield is a real ball player."

the players while on the field. There is much to be said on the side of the player in this case, but when we get down to the last analysis, the umpire is the court of last resort on the field and no matter how difficult it may be to swallow a decision, the player should be impressed with the fact.

To those who pay attention to the psychology of the game the case of Ruth versus Hildebrand does not present any unsolved problem. Hildebrand is one umpire who has made a reputation for himself as being level-headed and competent to cope with the vagaries of the various players. Ruth, the home run king, has been batting less than the insignificant figure of .150 per cent and, consequently, has been nursing a grievance against himself which he has seen fit to vent on the official. There may be some other reason, but it is dollars to the cake with a hole in it that, sifted down to its essentials, this is the answer. It will be remembered that the cause of Ruth's outburst of petulance was being called out at second base when he tried to stretch a single into a two-base hit.

The incapable as well as the capable umpire must be upheld in his decisions, but the former type undoubtedly has had much to do with the disorders on the field in the past. Fortunately for the game, there have been but few of him.

PHONE BOOKLET OF GREAT VALUE

Not Again Will Unknown Numbers Cause Mystery In Busy Hours

In one more direction, at least, Glendale will soon be a step ahead of many cities with a much larger population. The Evening News is compiling a directory that will quickly give information that is usually hard to find and will prove a valuable aid to visitors, local business men and residents, generally.

This novel book has telephone numbers listed numerically, followed by the name of the lessee. If you find a note on your desk asking you to call, it is the work of a moment to prepare to talk to that person in a satisfactory business way, having had the time to think out just what you wanted to say, a help, indeed, with a lot of business to attend to. That call may have come from some one you do not wish to speak to or some one you do wish to speak to in a hurry. At all times this book enables you to make your plans, or campaigns, to collect your thoughts, a most satisfactory way to do your business over the phone.

Classified List

Then there is the classified list of the stores, of professional people, of churches, and amusement places, hotels and restaurants—in fact, this handy book enables you to sit in your home or hotel and find just the right business man you want, call on him or have him call on you—no more running around trying to find this certain business or the office of that certain attorney, doctor, plumber, contractor, book store or groceryman. It is all interesting, and intelligently explained in The Evening News Directory. It becomes a pleasure to look for just what you want and know you are sure to find it with very little delay—a real help and time saver to residents as well as visitors.

The Evening News is making arrangements to supply 5000 homes and is placing many additional copies in hotels, Chamber of Commerce and other points where it will be easily accessible to the public and particularly the visitors.

ALFRED BARNES ON MEXICO TRIP

Local Realty Man Goes to Look After Business Affairs in Sonora, Mex.

Alfred H. Barnes, of the Circle Real Estate company, and Dr. Blondell, who left Glendale Tuesday noon for a business trip to Mexico, have written that they were making the trip without difficulty, and will soon be in Sonora. They are driving through and Mr. Barnes will be gone from one to two months. Dr. Blondell, who has been visiting relatives here for the past few months, will resume his practice of medicine and surgery in Sonora.

Mr. Barnes represents the Circle Real Estate company on the trip and will look after the interests of local investors in Sonora and other parts of Mexico. He will also inspect various mining and other properties there, with the view of advising prospective investors as to their merit. It is expected that he will have little of the usual difficulties on his inspection trip on account of the acquaintance of Dr. Blondell, who is widely acquainted in Mexico.

Physician to Oregon

For years, it is understood, Dr. Blondell was the personal physician of President Oregon, and is on very friendly terms with him. Dr. Blondell has also represented eastern and local interests in various large deals in Mexico, and will thus be in a position to render valuable service to Mr. Barnes, who is an old friend of the doctor. The latter has a large practice in the state of Sonora, to which he will return after personally conducting Mr. Barnes on his trip.

Messrs. Nichols and Seidenglanz of the Circle Realty company expected within a few days to receive word from Mr. Barnes that he has arrived in Sonora and has begun his investigations.

START CAMPAIGN TO STOP LAMP BREAKING

CHICAGO—Kids may think it's fun to hurl stones through street lamps or break them with their air rifles, but—

"It's dangerous vandalism and wasteful," pupils in the Chicago schools are warned.

Last year it cost Chicago $60,000 to replace street lamps broken by mischievous boys, according to George E. Carlson, city commissioner of gas and electricity.

A campaign now is under way in the schools here to stamp out intentional breaking of lamps. In addition to more usual methods, art posters cautioning against the practice will be designed by pupils, and the best ones are to be exhibited at the Art Institute this month.

SYNTHETIC TWINS ARE PLANNED BY PHYSICIANS

CHICAGO—Synthetic Siamese twins are planned by Dr. L. R. Dragstedt, of the physiology department of the University of Chicago. The doctor has been experimenting with cats, dogs and guinea pigs for six months, joining their abdominal cavities together in a suture similar to the Siamese twins.

Linking of the animals is for the purpose of learning more about internal secretions of the body, one of the subjects of which medical science has much to learn.

Dr. Dragstedt reports interesting developments in his studies, but no definite discoveries as yet.

"It may be something important will be discovered soon," he declared.

ILLINOIS TREASURER GETS ODD REQUESTS

MARION, Ill.—County Treasurer Edward M. Heaton is a most accommodating person and will do anything within the bounds of reason for the public, but he wants it clearly understood that he is no mind reader.

The reason for Heaton's announcement is the following letter from a non-resident Marion property owner—a woman, by the way:

"I own a lot in Marion, on the east side, I think. Anyway, it is in the direction of L. C. depot, in a relatively new addition. Will you please send me a statement of the amount of tax on this lot, as I wish to pay it now."

Despite his professional lack of clairvoyant power, Heaton succeeded in locating the lot.

THE S. S. BERAN COMPANY

states they will continue signing up contracts at the following low prices until material makes another rise:

4 room houses $1700 up 5 room houses $2275
6 room houses $2850
Duplex houses $3187

HIGH SCHOOLS IN NEED OF RADIO IS CLAIMED

State Superintendent Will Take Action; Old Folk Should 'Wake Up'

By GEORGE VAN SANDS
Radio Editor The Evening News

A recent dispatch from Sacramento is to the effect that Will C. Wood, state superintendent of public instruction, will make a request that all of the 350 high schools throughout the state be equipped with wireless telephone receiving sets, not only for their scientific value, but also so that they may be able to get into closer touch with local problems.

This ought to be a good thing, and hope he puts it over, but at the same time the average high school student has been familiar with radio for some time, and it appears that it's their elders who have been out of high school for ten or fifteen years who really ought to become a little more familiar with the actual facts as pertaining to radio.

The other day I was in a very fine home here in Glendale, and in the parlor among other things were a baby grand piano, and a very high-priced talking machine; the conversation turned to radio, and I inquired of the lady why it was she didn't have a radio. She said they had been thinking of it, but that they were so terribly expensive, and that no one around the house knew anything about operating one, so that they had been sort of hesitating, and when I told her that one of the best receiving sets on the market could be bought right here in Glendale for some $32, and that it would not take her five minutes to become perfectly familiar with its operation, she could hardly believe it.

Now, to tell you the truth, up to a short time ago, I never thought a great deal of the crystal type of receiver, and had always considered them nothing but much more or less than a scientific toy. Unless you were situated very close to a sending station you had to strain your ears to hear anything and their selectivity was decidedly conspicuous by its marked absence. But this set on the market today certainly surprised me, so much so, in fact, that unless I had operated it in my own home I would have never believed what it is actually capable of doing, and the peculiar part of it is, that the makers of this receiver are most decidedly conservative in making claims for it. They don't even claim that you can get broadcast stations situated much over twenty-five miles away with it.

And yet in the early part of the day, and late in the evening, I have heard the wireless telephone station on Catalina Island with this machine, and it came in as clear as a bell, and that is all of fifty miles away, and it brings in the Los Angeles and Pasadena broadcasting stations almost as clear as a high-priced vacuum tube set.

As far as operating it is concerned, it is so simple that printed directions are totally unnecessary; just about all you have to do is to put the head phones to your ears and turn a dial until the proper degree of loudness is obtained, making it so that absolutely anyone, regardless of how much or how little they know of radio, can operate this receiver with perfect success.

To those like myself, whose tastes have run to high-priced vacuum tube sets, this type of crystal receiver will certainly amaze you with what it can actually do, and it shows what remarkable improvements have been made in the crystal type of receiver in the last few months.

RADIO EXPLAINED

By E. H. LEWIS
INSTRUCTOR NEW YORK Y.M.C.A. RADIO SCHOOL

HETERODYNE ACTION

Suppose that the frequency of the oscillations in a receiving antenna is 100,000 cycles per second when that circuit is in resonance with the passing electro-magnetic waves sent out from a transmitting station. And suppose that these oscillations are unamped. No sound would be heard in the telephone receivers, even though the oscillations (alternating current) were rectified because the telephone diaphragms cannot vibrate that rapidly in the first place. But suppose a very small generator of undamped waves were placed in inductive relation with the antenna circuit. And suppose that this local generator, or miniature radio transmitter, were adjusted so that it generated oscillations of 101,000 cycle frequency. Due to the close inductive relation, oscillations of this local frequency will be forced to flow in the antenna circuit along with the oscillations due to the signals. We have oscillations of two frequencies, 100,000 cycles and 101,000 cycles, present in the antenna at the same time. These two frequencies will also be found in the secondary circuit. The curious thing is, however, that the currents of these two frequencies alternately add together and subtract from each other in varying amounts periodically and produce a third current of a lower frequency. This lower frequency in two frequencies 100,000 cycles per second, the difference between the two others. This frequency is an audible one, and upon rectification the current of this frequency will produce audible impulses in the telephone receivers. The ordinary crystal detector may be used for rectification in this case.

The interaction of two frequencies to produce a third and lower frequency is called heterodyne action. If vacuum tube circuits are used they may be arranged so that the local frequency oscillations are self-generated. This is called the "autodyne method," and the local oscillations are self-generated by the detector tube in a so-called "regenerative circuit." This will be taken up in more detail in a later article.

In the case considered above a small arc or a vacuum tube generator may be used for producing the heterodyne action. In practice a vacuum tube generator of very small power output is used. It could be a single tube generator.

eration desirable. A small, variable secondary condenser is shunted across the secondary coil, whose inductance is non-adjustable except when a loading coil is used. Tuning of the secondary is, therefore, accomplished only with this condenser, and the fact that the capacity is small and used with a comparatively large inductance value insures a maximum voltage being impressed upon the grid of the detector tube. This makes for louder signals. The primary inductance is controlled in length and is small, and is by two switches, the coil being coupled circuit can hardly be expected to be as selective as an inductive circuit, but many receivers incorporate the former for the sake of extreme simplicity of operation. In the receiver illustrated the inductively coupled circuit is used, but the coupling between primary and secondary coils is fixed at the value found best for maximum signal strength and freedom from spark telegraph interference. By making the coupling fixed inductive an unnecessary adjustment is eliminated. The result is a receiver which is very simple, indeed, to operate. The tickler coil is small to avoid too great regeneration and consequent distortion on the short waves. It is large enough, however, to provide for all the regentapped for this purpose.

One of the novel features is the elimination of the plug and jack system. The telephone receivers are connected to the binding posts at the extreme right, and the multi-point switch is used for switching the connections to detector, or one or two stages of amplification. Changing connections is simplicity itself.

The panel is of bakelite, the cabinet is finished in mahogany, and all metal parts are well nickel plated. Tube sockets are easily accessible for the insertion or withdrawal of tubes, and all controls are plainly marked. The appearance of the receiver and two stage amplifier is very pleasing, indeed, and the instrument is as efficient as it is good looking.

AMERICAN UPLIFT ENGLAND'S NEED, WRITER SAYS

Sinclair Lewis Says English Publishers Playing Unfair With U. S. Authors

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service

LONDON.—London, like Gopher Prairie, needs some American uplift.

That at least is the impression given by Sinclair Lewis, author of "Main Street," in a rather scolding speech which he delivered to a group of English authors, publishers, actors and dramatists. Lewis, who is in England writing another novel, caused somewhat of a sensation when he was introduced as a speaker at an informal gathering at an exclusive Bohemian Club, for he failed to dispense the usual "hands across the seas" patter which pleases. Instead he read a sort of literary riot act to the English intellectuals.

"American literature has just got to be recognized by you Britishers," Lewis scolded. "We've got there. We're going to stay there; and you have got to realize that whether you like it or not."

American Writer Rebuffed

"The American market is open and always has been to the British writer, but the American writer does not get the same treatment over here."

Stacy Aumonier, widely known in the British literary circles, was in the chair. He gasped. The club members who had applauded Lewis when he was introduced were astounded and lapsed into a collective daze while the fiery red-headed American author proceeded in his scolding denunciation of the manner in which Great Britain is receiving the written art of America. Lewis was listened to eagerly, but it is needless to say that the club members did not exert themselves with applause when he finished, and he was followed by a Japanese poet, who sensed the atmosphere and attempted to smooth matters over by a liberal tribute to Great Britain's appreciation of world literature.

There were threats of denunciation of Lewis by some members of the club and Chairman Ammonier saved the occasion by calling for a soloist in order that the meeting might not "develop into an international crisis."

FLOWER FESTIVAL IS WELL STAGED BY CHILDREN

Person: violets, Mary Pomeroy, Dorothy Paxton and Martha Jones; daisies, Catherine Henry, Dorothy Bissinger and Nellie Wallace.

Then, they notice that the Flower Queen is absent. At first, they think she has gone off on a picnic, but finally it dawns on them that she is A. W. O. L.

Meanwhile, Robert Whittin, who is disguised in green trousers, a purple tunic edged around the neck with a scalloped "Bertha," as Johnny-Jump-Up, has been cutting capers in an effort to cheer up the gang.

Hist! Here's Villain

Suddenly, Richard Torrey, the King of the Weeds, and his retinue, swarmer in with much bravado. He is the villain and he looks it—with his varicolored tunic of nettle brown, poison oak red and thistle lavender, over weed green trousers. To show that he is boss of the outfit he carries a weed scepter.

The aforesaid retinue consisted of some of the choicest weeds that ever plagued a suburban garden.
Garbed in gray tunics are the thistles: Howard Chase, Arthur Kilpatrick, Robert Finlay and Robert Hawkinson.

Right behind them comes a quartet of poison oak in tunics of brownish red: Lloyd Spearan, Leonard Davis, Gordon Carline and Richard Shuck.

Nettles in tunics of dust brown are on the job, too: Jesse Brown, George Hollister, William Newby and George McClammy.

Master King doesn't lose any time getting busy with his villainy. Right in front of the entire audience he announces the fact that he has kidnapped the Flower Queen. Then he exits, muttering —villains always do.

Decision Is Reached

The flowers hold a conference and decide to give the case to the Fairy Detective Agency and in comes May Goetz, all dressed up in a filmy white tunic, as the Fairy Queen. Her hair is held down by a band of pink and white trimmed with tinsel. You can tell that's she's the queen because she carries a wand tipped with a silvery star. Soon as she has sung her song, which was well applauded, and looked for finger prints, she starts the game of "Passing the Buck."

Firefly—that isn't her real name—her real name is Dorothy Kilgore—the first to start the search. The fact that she is attired in a black dress over an orange underbody and carries a wand tipped with a bug—an imitation one—and wears another on her headband, doesn't seem to be much of a handicap.

She calls the South Wind, who happens to be Hazel Howard in a long, flowing, warm gray scarf of filmy cheesecloth. No, the color is warm gray—not the scarf.

The South Wind doesn't seem to know much about the mystery so she summons the butterflies: Marian Morgan, Emma Torrey, Virginia Endicott and Virginia Farrow. These are dressed in close-fitting bodices and skirts of purple with spots of orange down the front. Their orange-colored wings are edged with purple and spotted with purple, also. To their headbands are attached purple antenae which look like feelers—to anyone who has never studied zoology.

Whispers for Wind

Starbeam, Elda Bley, in a tunic of cold blue, is the next fairy to take up the clue. She whispers for the North Wind who is Elsie Chance in a tunic of French blue.
She is followed by white-clad John Cole as Jack Frost. He is accompanied by the snowflakes: Relta Shrader, Mildred Prager, Evelyn Chase, Leone Rockhold and Laura Cutler.

Sea-Mist, who is Ruth Bender in a costume which is blue over green, has mastery over the East Wind, Jennie Sherland in a tunic of light blue. She is followed by a tribe of Indians in brown suits from Sears-Roebuck. Around their brows are crowns of Indian feathers. Among them are: James Rames, Milton Black, William Thompson, George Aney, John Koenig and Richard Garton.

The Indians are accompanied by the Autumn Leaves, all of whom wear green bodices and half of whom wear red skirts divided into petals, while the other half wear orange petal skirts. They are: Elfrieda Tronowski, Frances Farwell, Celia Logan and Mary Shimel.

Moon-Dawn is the last fairy to respond, although she has been aching to pick up the scent ever since she came on the scene. She is Lorraine Muster dressed in a pale green under a gray scarf. Her brow is set off with a silvery crescent.

Before anybody can stop her, she has called the West Wind, Cornelia Hollingsworth, in a costume of old rose color. To her falls the lot of summoning the Chrysanthemums. These are dressed in bodices of green and with slashed lavender skirts. Rose Bagley, Hartley Person, Rosano Mirano, Louise Vorwerk and Ethel Sanders each carries a chrysanthemum.

Hail! Here's Queen!

Just about the time the audience begins to figure that the Queen is gone for keeps, in marches a troop of Boy Scouts with the Queen, who has been behind the scenes all the time, and the King of the Weeds as prisoner.
Among them are: Lockwood

Matters pertaining to the automobile industry and to Glendale were also discussed at that time.

The local automobile dealers are an unusually active organization of business men and are doing much for the benefit of Glendale.

DEMONSTRATION HOLDS INTEREST

Women Visit Pendroy's to See Fireless Cookers
In Unique Work

The fireless cooker demonstrations being conducted every afternoon this week at Pendroy's Department store by Mrs. C. S.
Decker, are attracting much attention and favorable comment among the housewives of Glendale.

Mrs. Decker is demonstrating the Toledo fireless cookers every day this week from 1 to 5 o'clock on the third floor of the new department store building at Brand and Ave.

Today's menu of roast chicken and ice cream is being served free. The public is invited to visit Pendroy's and see chicken cooked in one side of the cooker and ice cream frozen on the other.

Many Other Subjects

Zoning and city planning, advertising and selling, home town talks, industrial development and other subjects were sketched and high tribute was paid the retiring national secretary, Tom Ingersoll, who becomes secretary of the Los Angeles Realty board.

Edward James Cattell, city statistician of Philadelphia, who has just passed his 86th birthday, closed the convention by preaching the gospel of optimism and the social events of the week-end were highly entertaining. On a trip around the harbor the local contingent learned that San Francisco bay is owned and controlled by the state of California.

Dr. Jesse A. Russell closed the day's discussion by announcing the Glendale chapter of War Mothers desired automobiles on Friday night, June 16, to bring delegates attending the convention in Los Angeles, to Glendale and its environs. Mrs. M. L.
Tight was named a committee of one to enlist the realtors in doing this deed.

LOCAL BUILDER IN SAN JOAQUIN

L. D. McKeen to Be Away Until About First of July Superintending Work

L. D. McKeen, local contractor and builder, 7 Rudy building, 103-A North Brand, is at present in the San Joaquin valley, where he is directing the construction of a number of houses.

Mr. McKeen has built a number of Glendale residences and his work is well known. Recently the opportunity came to him to build residences in the San Joaquin valley and he accepted.

According to his plans at present, Mr. McKeen expects to be away until about July 1. He will then resume his building operations in Glendale, it is stated.

GIRL ACCEPTS PULPIT OF HER DEAD FATHER

ROCHESTER, N. H.—Miss Helen Wallace has been extended a call to become pastor of the Free Baptist church at Alton. She is the daughter of the late Rev.
O. H. Wallace, who recently died while serving as pastor of the church.

Following his death his daughter supplied the pulpit and filled out the unexpired term, and the church society, being well satisfied with her services, extended her a call to become the permanent rector of the church. She accepted and has commenced her pastorate.

ARE HERE FROM KANSAS

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Sweat of 225 West Arden avenue have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Ash of Topeka, Kan., who are attending the Rotary convention in Los Angeles. They are all planning to leave Saturday for San Francisco, where they will attend the Shriners' convention.

McCann, Donald Bentley, Spencer St. Clair, Jack Farmer, Tom Crawford, Clifford Koenig and Louis Vierick. Each of them carries a garden implement.

The Flower Queen mounts her throne. She is Dorothy Buckman in a dress of red to represent an "American Beauty." Only the audience agrees that she doesn't have to merely represent one.

The Weed King is ordered sent to Luther Burbank, the "Wizard of the West." It is understood that the villain is to be transformed into a wonderful and useful plant.

In gratitude of her release, the Flower Queen sings a song and commands the fairies to weave a spell of fertile fields and generous harvests and bestows this gift upon the Boy Scouts.

This "Children's Midsummer Night's Dream" is preceded by a drill of children from the third and fourth grades in which the boys are dressed in green as grasses and the girls are dressed in pink as sweet peas. This is directed by Miss Alice Livesy, Mrs.
Bertie Emery and Miss Janet Perkins.

Credit for the overwhelming success of the entertainment is being given, among others, to Miss Annie L. McIntyre, principal of the Central Avenue school; Mrs.
E. E. Harwood, who designed the costumes; Miss Elizabeth Edwards, who coached the spoken parts, and Miss Ethel Kent, who directed the chorus and solos. All who saw the performance agreed that it was well worthy of the undivided attention of the Man-in-the-Moon.

REALTY BOARD TO TAKE ACTION ON LISTING PLAN

Decision May Be Reached

National Convention

low realtors, "for, in every community we visited, they had a hearty spot where they could entertain or the visitors could rest."

Speaking of the convention proper, Mr. Hayward told how Governor William D. Stephens talked of California's sunshine and flowers, while Charles F.
Stern of Los Angeles made the speech of the day by showing the visitors in facts and figures that this state was sufficient unto itself.

Three conferences were going all of the time, instead of one general session, according to the local secretary, who highly complimented the scheme. In the multiple listing division he learned that 58 cities now are successfully using that scheme whereas a year ago 13 realty boards had adopted the plan.

The financing of real estate was taken up in another conference and some cities are succeeding in this by organizing auxiliary building loan companies which take in property and sell it back to the home builders on a contract basis.
There are two and one-half times the number of building and loan associations in the country than savings banks, he learned.

FIGHT BENEATH WATER THRILLS

Tom Mix Picture Proves Satisfying to Audience at Glendale Theatre

"Up and Going," the stirring Fox photoplay, which has been at the Glendale theatre with Tom Mix as the star. It is a thrilling story and Mix is exceedingly clever in it, as usual. The under-water fight in the great Northwest river comes at a tense moment, and the beauty of the picture's scenic background is a big attraction in itself.

This is the last day the picture will be shown at the Glendale.
Other numbers on the bill make it one of the most interesting seen in a long while, for Mix is a Glendale resident.

Villa Tract Sale Opening Under Way

The Glendale Villa Tract, located at the corner of Tenth street and Alameda, North Glendale, is the latest tract to be put on the market, the opening sale starting this week.

This new subdivision consists of eighty-six lots, varying in size from 40 by 150 feet to spacious ten-acre homesites. All the lots are exceptionally well located and drained—nestling close to the foothills and commanding a most excellent view of the Verdugo Mountains and the Valley. The tract before being subdivided had been known for years as the Cole ranch, but has been purchased and divided by William Brice, who has personally supervised all the improvements.

J. E. Viney of Burbank has been appointed salesmanager and it is expected that many of the lots will be purchased the first week of the sale, as many who have inspected the sub-division while the lots were being staked out expressed their desire to purchase as soon as the tract was platted and placed on the market.

BEN FRANKLIN RIGHT, MR. CHESTNUT DECIDES

MEMPHIS Tenn.—W. S. Chestnutt, baseball fan, of Little Rock, Ark., is convinced that it is economy to buy a ticket and see games from the grandstand instead of through the old familiar knothole in the fence. Chestnutt was the first arrival at a particularly choice knothole at the Southern league park, in Little Rock, recently. The game was so exciting that he declined to "take turns" with a crowd of boys behind him.
After the game he notified the police that his purse carried in a hip-pocket and containing $24, had disappeared.
